An Invitation to Transformation

Expressing the virtues sown by God in each human heart is a great challenge in these times, in which humility, obedience, love to the divine, simplicity and service become ever less common attributes within humanity's day-to-day life. This illustrated Rosary has the objective of bringing children and youth closer to the Chaste Heart of Saint Joseph through prayer so that they may be touched and guided by His Love.

In Her daily Message of August 19, 2016, the Virgin Mary transmitted this special Rosary, saying: "This Rosary of the Holy Virtues of Saint Joseph will remove from human ignorance anyone who wholeheartedly prays, invoking the devotion to the Holy Worker of God."

Our Divine Mother also revealed that being united to the Chaste Heart can help us live differently:

"Through His Holy Virtues, Saint Joseph offers Himself to humanity to help it experience the sanctification of consciousness, as well as provide the opportunity to families, for them to experience the Attributes of God, and generate the proper conditions for Unity to be present among all creatures."

Saint Joseph, as a Guardian of hearts and protector of all souls, is eternally willing to help beings come to know and transcend the human condition, which being immature and imperfect, prevents the evolution of consciousnesses and deep awakening.

Dear children, this is how, in this time, Saint Joseph offers Himself to humanity to teach you how to overcome your difficulties so that souls may trust in the Grace of the Father and in His Infinite Mercy.

The Virgin Mary

December 19, 2016

Keep your heart immersed in Divine Mercy, remembering that the Grace of God is something that must be cultivated and sustained within you. Make the gifts and virtues that the Lord granted you grow and multiply, because the time has come to put into practice, before the atrocities of the world, the faith and perseverance in the Love of Christ.

October 30, 2018

This is the time to recognize the virtues and gifts that I make flourish within the hearts of the simple. It is also time to recognize My Face in the fellow being, in the one who is alone, in the one who is sick, in the thirsty and in the one in agony, because all you do for the least of Mine, you do it for Me.

To the Reader

I'm 11 years old and my best friend, who's the same age as me, was walking on the beach on a normal day. It was very hot, so he went for a dip in the sea. When he came back, his sandals were missing! He was very sad because those were his favorite sandals, so his dad encouraged him to just go on the walk barefoot. Since it was so hot, they had no other option but to run, because the sand was scorching! They had fun between runs and jumps into the sea. On the way back home, they noticed that the police had arrested a "sandal's thief"; they got closer to see if my friend's sandals were there, among so many others that the man had stolen that day, but my friend said to his dad: "I no longer need those sandals. I was able to run and to have fun with the hot sand on my feet. He can keep the sandals."

When he told me this story, I found everything very strange. Why did my friend give up his favorite sandals? Those were the pair he liked the most. I couldn't understand why he just "let it go."

With my head full of odd thoughts, I went to work with my dad. We were almost there when, out of nowhere, we hit a traffic jam. It seemed pretty normal, one of those big city things. Five, ten, twenty minutes went by... we didn't even notice that all this time had passed because we were chatting and listening to some good music but, as the time went on, the drivers began to get angry. The honking sounds became unbearable, and many drivers, feeling very nervous and stressed, started to yell in protest. It really wasn't that nice to stay there waiting. Could we do something about it? Maybe if we yelled too, someone would hear it and bring a solution.

"Son, shall we pray? Your mom taught me a really great prayer for these moments." This was my dad's proposal. I thought it was a weird invitation. We were going to stay there for who knows how long, just praying? I couldn't believe it! As if my dad could read my thoughts, he said: "It's not worth it to get so bothered about it. Let's raise our thoughts to God and wait in peace."

The next day was Saturday, a day off. Many questions were swirling through my mind with everything I had experienced in the last few days. My mom noticed my restlessness and made me an offer: to help organize the orphanage my aunt founded.

I went there feeling kind of lazy and suspicious. Pretty soon I discovered that there was a lot to be done: boxes filled with toys that had to be organized, piles of clothes to be sorted out and the snacks still needed to be prepared. Annoyed, wishing to be somewhere else, I chose to organize the toys, until a few boys called me to go to the garden and play a little bit. It was so much fun! After a lot of horsing around, we went back to finish organizing the toys, helped to prepare the snacks and we even swept the whole hall! We were very tired by the time the inauguration began, and I thought: where are the orphan children who need our help?

I was startled when I realized that the children who invited me to play with them, and who were helping with everything, were the children who would be taken care of at the orphanage. My mom made an opening speech at the event and she said very beautiful words. I went home feeling different.

The next day, we stayed home to rest, but that week had been very different, so I was still restless. As I relived in my mind everything that had happened, I began to notice that there was another way to go through life. I kept mulling it over... instead of being angry when something bad happens to us, we can try to act differently, without complaining or causing trouble. Instead of getting involved with conflict, I can raise my thoughts to God and experience peace through prayer.

Instead of spending my days only thinking about myself, I realized I can help those who are right next to me...

My mom showed up at the exact moment I was having these thoughts and, as if she were reading my mind, she gave me this book as a gift. She told me that Joseph, the Child Jesus' father, had also gone through many challenges in His time, but with His Heart and mind always in God, He learned with simplicity about Divine Love. She taught me how to pray and ask Saint Joseph for His Holy Virtues to help me in this adventure of experiencing humility, obedience and service... and thus grow in virtues. She also taught me that life is only worth living with love – for God and for others – and that Saint Joseph could help me with this.

This has become my favorite book because I've noticed that as I pray the Rosary of the Holy Virtues of Saint Joseph, I manage to become a better person each day. I feel in my heart the peace and love of Saint Joseph guiding me at each moment of my life, even during challenges. What about you giving it a try as well?

Come and pray with us in our virtual prayer room too! I will be there along with many other children!

Did You Know You Can Be a Child and Friend of Saint Joseph?

Saint Joseph is much closer to us than we can imagine! Since 2015, He has been revealing precious instructions to humanity through regular apparitions to the visionary Sister Lucía de Jesús, a nun of the Grace Mercy Order.

On June 16, 2023, during a private apparition, Saint Joseph transmitted a Message in which He offered to be even closer to those who wish. Therefore, on that same day, He intited the consecration of the Children and Friends of Saint Joseph. So what does it mean to be a child and friend of His Chaste Heart? In the Message of August 19, 2023, Saint Joseph revealed:

“Do you know why I call you children and friends? Because a child is one whom we love deeply, one with whom we establish an eternal bond that does not dissolve due to actions or paths one might decide to tread. A child always carries a part of their parents within themselves.

And do you know why I call you friends? Because a child might journey through this world but friends never lose contact, rather they always remain there, walking side by side, learning together, as a companion in the transformation of consciousness. This is what I expect you to be: children and friends. And I will be a father and a friend to you.”

The Five Pillars of Consecration of the Children and Friends of Saint Joseph Are:

Conscious preparation through the study of the Messages that He has delivered to us; prayer for those most forgotten; prayer with and for the families of the world; humanitarian service, and selfless service to the Kingdoms of Nature.

“These will be the pillars of the Children and Friends of Saint Joseph, who, as a symbol of their consecration, will just wear the Medal that I gave to you, and through actions of life, demonstrate to the world that they are children and friends of My Chaste Heart.”

Excerpt of the Message from June 16, 2023

An Invitation to the Children and Friends of Saint Joseph:

"On the last Saturday of each month, the Children and Friends of Saint Joseph should celebrate the Day of Selfless Service to the Animal Kingdom, with service actions in places consecrated to the Kingdoms of Nature, such as the Lands of Unity, where unity with life transmutes and liberates world suffering; the Park of Saint Francis of Assisi, where service to dogs transmutes and liberates human indifference; and the Farm of the Star, where the light that ignites within souls liberates the darkness of those who are in the dark.

These are places where My Heart dwells in a special way, but I want to tell you that the Day of Selfless Service to the Animal Kingdom can be carried out by the Children and Friends of Saint Joseph wherever you may be so that, little by little, you may awaken Christic Love in your beings and, through you, in the entire human consciousness."

Excerpt of the Message from June 16, 2023

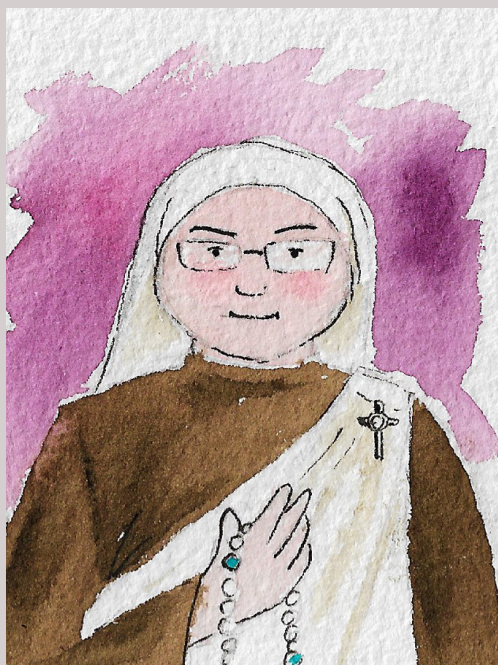

"I was also tempted to think that fulfilling God's Will would be impossible, but the Love of the Father triumphed beyond My human condition. And this is why the Lord asked Me to come and consecrate the world through this new consecration of Children and Friends, those who will follow My example of union with the Sacred Family, of submission to Divine Will, of humility and service, so that, in the end, children, God's Love may triumph beyond the human condition."

If you wish to consecrate as a Child and Friend of Saint Joseph, please
